

BROWN EYED BABY PLEADS

Sufferings of Hundreds of Thousands of Women
Worse Than Death.

By JOHN M. OTT

Hold our babies just a minute, plead a hundred thousand mothers to America. Take them on your knee that we may rest our arms. We have walked miles and miles. Our breasts are dry. Our babies are dying for the want of a piece of bread.

Can not the people of Tennessee hear that cry from across the seas? From the Near East where filth and disease lurk under every piece of demolished homes?

Their wall has been heard by the American Committee for Relief in the Near East and is being echoed to the whole United States. With the echo comes the call for money. Funds for the greatest and most far-reaching charitable cause ever presented to the people of this wealthy nation.

These peoples, this mother and her brown-eyed baby, were driven from their peaceful and quiet villages by the Turkish armies when that German-officered organization of fiends invaded the Western Asiatic countries of Persia, Syria, Mesopotamia, Armenia and others. Deported for hundreds of miles. At each turn in the winding road lies a heap of skeletons. Milestones in the march of Kultur with its Turkish atrocities.

This mother is one of hundreds of thousands returning to their former homes. Her husband died on the way that she and Baby might live. Both were refined and educated. Baby was to have been sent to the village school and then given further opportunity to become a useful citizen of the world.

What if it does prattle with a weak voice in another tongue? What is language, anyway? Speech is nothing more than certain arrangements of sounds that express thoughts. Does the fact that Baby's mother and father expressed their thoughts differently from Americans lessen the duty to answer the call for help?

And now, unless the people of the United States heed this prayer for help, 500,000 orphans will die and their deaths will be checked as the sins of a selfish heart. Every refusal to help this Baby is the signing of its death warrant.

Tennessee is asked to give $300,000. The entire State has been organized under the direction of a state chairman and state director. T. Graham Hall is the state chairman and Seth Selders, state director. Each county has a county chairman and effective organization which is seeking contributions for the saving of these lives. All expenses of the campaign are met by subscriptions privately solicited. Every cent of every dollar given in this drive goes to the purchase of food and clothing for these unfortunates and this Baby will be one of them. It will be placed in an orphanage and given education, and food for body, soul and mind. It will be allowed to play with others. If Tennessee does not give $300,000 or more there always will be a stain upon it. Its citizens will not fail in the only purely charitable relief work ever undertaken on a nation-wide scale, by such men as Cleveland H. Dodge, William H. Taff, and Charles Evans Hughes, who are members of the executive committee. Cleveland H. Dodge is National Treasurer. A. B. Benedict, general manager of the Nashville Trust Company, is state treasurer.

This little Baby's mother knows that somewhere there is food and lots of it. She knows that there are ships to bring it to her little darling. And the people of Tennessee know there is, too, and they will make the way clear for that life-sustaining food to reach this mother and child, and hundreds of thousands of other mothers and children, in time to keep those heaps of skeletons from growing larger.

FAMED IN LEGEND AND STORY

Rhine Has for Generations Inspired Patriotism Among the Sons of the Fatherland.

For generations past the Rhine has served to inspire the spirit of patriotism among his German children, who love to call him "Father Rhine." "Wacht am Rhein" was the great national song which was sung with an extraordinary fervor by the German soldiers alike in the hour of defeat and victory in the Franco-German war, being sung before the walls of Paris in that great campaign which ended in victory for the Prussian forces. And now that their country is faced with a greater peril than any she has hitherto experienced, the words of that great war song, bringing back memories of 1870, will be sung by millions of the Kaiser's forces on land and sea. Truly the Rhine is a fit subject for a national song. Its banks were the scene of many of the fierce battles for supremacy which took place between the Teutonic hosts and the Romans, whose strongest bulwark it was; it was there that Gaul and Teuton struggled for supremacy in the generations that followed.

Flowing through a land clothed with vineyards, that yield a wine which is famed the world over for its exquisite bouquet and dry, piquant flavor, "Father Rhine" breathes a spirit of song and legend and romance. Ruined castles crown the rugged and fantastic crags that hem in its channel; its waters, of a deep green hue, flow over the treasure of the Nibelungs, surge round the rock of the siren Lorelei, and are overlooked by the commanding statue of Germania—the trophy of German victory in 1870.

Except during the 18th and the greater part of the 19th centuries, it has always been a purely German river. It became part of the dividing line between France and Germany in 1697, when Alsace-Lorraine was appropriated by France; in 1870 it was won back by its children at the point of the sword. It is to the German race what the Thames is to the English people. It is a means of livelihood, too, for it carries more than two million tons of freightage each year, and is a symbol of national prosperity.

Friends Here

J. D. Luna, of Winchester, candidate for Floater, was here Saturday night, staying over until Monday when he went to Jasper. He was conducting a close canvas for votes and made many friends while here.

He has the distinction of being the first one of the candidates in the field to propose that Marion county should be set free from its political slavery to Franklin county, by setting forth in his platform that he was going to work to that end. This more nearly concerns us than the question of retaining the 18th judicial circuit, the abolishment of which he is decidedly against. He is also against any more bonds being inflicted on Marion county without the vote of the people.

He is a jolly good fellow and not at all stuck up, and has the distinction of not having any strings tied to him, so as to make him respond puppet-like.

If you wish to have what you want, never want what you can't have.—Servillian Proverb.
